Sewerage Systems.

The result of experiments conducted in the interests of the city of Paris during the past five years has been such that the city has committed itself to irrigation as a mode of sewage disposal.

The entire efflux from the sewers of Paris is on an average, three hundred and sixty-two thousand cubic metres a day. This is almost exactly three-quarters of the total amount of water furnished by the aqueducts and the rainfall.

The present area of irrigated land under the system is fourteen hundred and thirty acres, while the system is gradually being extended to new land at the request of the owners.

The annual returns from the crops is from $250 to $800 per acre, and even more when a cultivator has made a fortunate choice of a special product. The rent paid for the land has tripled within a few years, and averages now $38 an acre.

Judging from the results obtained, the engineers have concluded that ten thousand acres of ground will satisfactorily and profitably purify the whole sewage of Paris, and have set about acquiring suitable territory.

In this country recent experiments have been in the same direction, and in some cases the result has been favorable to the system.

The Essex Paper Company.

About one mile north from the centre of the village upon Broad Street stands a large brick structure, surmounted by two smoke stacks and known as the Essex Paper Company. It stands upon a plot of ground about one half acre in extent, almost completely covered by the several buildings. Power is supplied from the canal, and by three engines with a combined strength of 160 horsepower.

The water is drawn from the Rubber Company, by William Roll and from the upper level of the Canal, passes through both mills and is then conducted back into the Canal below the Inclined Plane.

The mill originally built upon this spot was destroyed by fire in 1869. A frame structure 100x40 feet in extent, it was intended as a manufactory of hat-bodies from bamboo wood. Large quantities of this material, both whole and crushed, were shipped here for this purpose. Experiments were conducted by Mr. James McCracken, but proved unsuccessful. The present mill was built by Messrs. Judson & Turney of New York, under the superintendency of George W. Goddard. Known as the Silver Spring Paper Company, from the beautiful stream of spring water used in supplying the vats, it was never prosperous, and during the panic of 1873 passed into the hands of a receiver, owing to the financial difficulties of its owners. After remaining idle for a time, Mr. Robert Fulton took charge of it, improved its machinery, and finally bought it, christening it the Weymouth Paper Mills. Large quantities of Manila paper were made by him, from rope, jute, and other materials. Its prosperity increased, and it was rarely idle, running day and night for many years. About one and a half years ago its present owners, Messrs. Magarge & Green, of Philadelphia, bought the mill, and have run it steadily ever since. The name of the mill has by them been changed to the Essex Paper Company, and with some improvements in the machinery, a better class of paper is produced. Waste paper is now used for stock, and a good quality of printing, news, or book paper produced. For some time the mill has been run upon a large government contract for paper for the Congressional Record, furnishing several tons per day during the session of Congress. Work has also been done here for the Sunday-School Times, and other papers. In the room facing Broad Street on the west are the large beaters and washers; upon the north the revolving boilers for reducing the stock; and in the south wing two paper machines for making, drying, and cutting the paper. The mill has a capacity for from twenty to thirty tons of paper per week, and consumes from fifteen to twenty tons of coal under its several boilers per day. About fifty hands are employed.

During the spring extensive improvements have been made in the machinery, a new smoke stack erected, and the boilers upon the west side reset. Two new boilers will be added at no distant day. While not disposed to drive their business to its full capacity, the proprietors show enterprise, and will no doubt push their opportunity at the first return of business prosperity. They have long been engaged in the manufacture of paper and have large mills in Philadelphia and elsewhere.

Montclair.

Friday, 2.20 A. M. the fire bell rang for a fire in District 32, to which both apparatuses responded. The fire was found to be in the handsome residence of S. C. G. Watkins, D. D. S., on Fullerton near Bloomfield Avenue at 2 A. M. the family were aroused by the smoke, but had considerable difficulty in getting out of the building. The firemen quickly got the chemical to work, and placed the pump in position at the cistern, but found no water; then the pump was taken to the brook, which was dammed up and the pump started. The brook is 32 feet below the level of the street, and this, and the three lengths of hose which the water was forced through, combined to disable one brake and piston of the pump, so that only half of the power of the pump could be used. Essex afterwards met with the same mishap. The citizens and firemen removed the office furniture and dental instruments and most of the furniture on the parlor floor, but the clothing and furniture upstairs was a total loss.

About 4.15 Essex, of Bloomfield, came up accompanied by some of the Hose Company. They aided greatly in confining the fire to the one building.

After the danger was over coffee and sandwiches were served to the firemen, furnished by ladies and by Bagstrom, by order of M. H. & L. Co. No. 1. The fire started in front of the Doctor's reception room, and the heat soon melted the gas meter attachment, and this flame was the greatest obstacle to the putting out of the fire. The insurance was as follows: House $5,500; Furniture $2,000; Dental Instruments 1,000. Total $9,400. In Phoenix, Niagara, London, Liverpool and Globe Ins., Cos. Dr. Watkins left while removing furniture and broke his left fore-arm, and had to be helped from the building. Several of the Montclair firemen met with minor accidents.

At a regular meeting of M. H. & L. Co., No. 1 held Monday evening, a vote of thanks was given to Essex for their assistance.

The fourth anniversary of the Children's Home was held at the Congregational church on Tuesday evening. Rev. Mr. Church, Revs. Dr. Berry and Bradford of Montclair assisting; Rev. E. P. Rainsford of St. George's Episcopal church, N. Y., delivering the address of the evening. The house was only about half full, but those present were well repaid in the singing of the children from the Home, and in the energetic and practical address of Rev. Mr. Rainsford.

The meeting called by the Town Committee on Water and Sewerage was well attended, and a committee was appointed by chairman Russell, to consider and report at a future meeting on the most desirable plans.

There was a large attendance at the Presbyterian Church last Sunday, it being the fifteenth anniversary of Dr. display of flowers in this church. The sermon was from Heb. beautiful. "He endured as seeing Him who is invisible," and was appropriate to the occasion. In conclusion Dr. Berry said:

"In my recent statement I said that no minister ever had warmer and truer friends than I have in this congregation." The response which you made to this assertion was even more than I had dared to expect. With more emphasis, therefore, than before, I repeat the words which I then used, "God bless you, my dear friends, for all your love and kindness towards me."

"The question of my pastoral relations which came before us four weeks ago has occupied my most prayerful, conscientious and careful consideration ever since. I have thought of the matter in all its probable and possible influences and results, so far as I could see; I have consulted some of the wisest advisers among the ministers of our own, and other ministers not in this Presbytery. I have received letters from ministers at a distance, and all these unanimously and emphatically advise that it is my duty to remain in this Presbytery. They tell me that I owe it to the principles involved in the case; that I owe it to the desire of the great majority of this congregation, and that I owe it to myself. To this conviction my own mind has come, so far as I can at present see the path of duty."

"I am therefore of the opinion that I should go forward in the work to which God's providence led me, and in which the Presbytery placed me fifteen years ago. By God's Grace, I intend to give you the best service I can render, in order to be profitable to your spiritual interests, and I invoke from you love and kindness, prayer and co-operation in the work of the Father, the Son and the Holy Spirit be on us all. Amen."

Dr. Berry was warmly congratulated at its close by his people.

Literary Notes.

—Bret Harte is engaged in preparing a new Californian story.

—Marion Crawford's new novel, "Zoroaster the Prophet," is just ready.

—Mrs. Sutherland Orr's Handbook to the works of Robert Browning is about ready.

—Ouida's new story, "Othmar," is laid in Russia among the upper ranks of society.

—Mrs. S. G. C. Middlemore has a new book in press consisting of Spanish legendary tales.

—Mr. Quaritch is preparing a catalogue of books in his possession relating to American Antiquities.

—During the past eight months no fewer than 823 new papers have been started in the United States.

—The Empress Eugenie is about to enter the field of authorship with "Some Recollections from My Life."

—The latest volume of the American Statesmen series, just published, is devoted to "Samuel Adams."

—It is understood that the journals and correspondence of Ralph Waldo Emerson will be edited by his literary executor, Mr. William Wood.

—A new work by the author of "One Summer," Blanche Willis Howard, is a romance of the Siege of Paris. The book is to be called "Aulnay Tower."

—Charlotte M. Yonge at 63 can look back upon 30 busy years with a still active pen, which has produced, including her books of all kinds, over 400 volumes, with 120 titles.

The unpublished novel found in the papers of the late Colonel Fred. Burnaby will be published during the coming autumn, together with a biography of the famous traveler, by a friend.

—Robert L. Stevenson's during title of "The Arabian Nights" seems to have been somewhat justified by the admiration of readers of the first series. One of the stories in a new series will be called "The Dynamiter."

—"Cassell's Red Library" is another "Library" to be added to the long list of publications of that class with which the literary world has of late years been deluged. This series will be issued monthly and it will contain only popular standard works.

—A volume of letters, written by the Earl of Beaconsfield to his family, describing his experience and adventures during a tour in the Mediterranean in 1830-31, is announced for this month by the enterprising London publisher, Mr. Murray.

—M. Max O'Rell, who without a French name appeared as the author of "John Bull et son Ile" and of "Les Filles de John Bull," is now asserted to be M. Paul Blouet, French master at Westminster school. He is also editor of the volumes on French Oratory issued by the Clarendon Press.

—J. C. Braig, writing of Renan, in "The Christian Union," reports that the famous author of the Life of Christ has no longer on the public mind the ascendancy he once had; that his audiences at his college lectures are small, and that the "days of his ipse dixit are numbered." Like Voltaire, he lives to see that the Christian religion cannot be ridiculed out of existence like an absurd political theory or a spurious scientific doctrine.

Friendship.

Dear friend, I pray thee, if thou wouldst be proving Thy strong regard for me,
Make me no vows. Lip service is not loving;
Let thy faith speak for thee.

Swear not to me that nothing can divide us—
So little such oaths mean.
When—when distrust and envy creep beside us,
Let them not come between.

Say not to me the depths of thy devotion
Are deeper than the sea;
But watch, lest doubt or some unkind emotion
Embitter them for me.

Vow not to love me ever and forever,
Words are such idle things;
But when we differ in opinions, never
Hurt me by little things.

I'm sick of words; they are so lightly spoken,
And spoken, are but air.
I'd rather feel thy trust in me unbroken,
Than list thy words so fair.

If all the little proofs of trust are heeded,
If thou art always kind,
No sacrifice, no promise will be needed
To satisfy my mind.
